Classics 373 Sections
Classics 373 is an independent study, but will be treated as regular classes.

Section 1: The Art of Social Change
-Barnard Buffet Room, Tuesdays 11:00am-12:15pm
-Explores the foundations of social change through the lens of self-exploration, discussions, and art.

Section 2: CRC Local
-Classroom 126, Thursdays 9:30-10:45am
-Students will partner with Madison area organizations to complete work in service to the Madison community.

Section 3: Socially Just Leadership
-Barnard Buffet Room, Thursdays 3:30-5:25pm
-Bring students from different cultural groups in a facilitated learning space to build and practice their leadership skills through a lens of social justice.

Section 4: Storytelling and Public Life
-Classroom 126, Tuesdays 5-6:00pm
-In this seminar, we will explore how public figures “control the narrative” in order to shape their images, inspire their followers, and establish their legacies.

English 200
Rose Writing Workshop
Wednesdays, 5:30-7pm in Classroom 126

The focus is on students’ own writing in this workshop-oriented course for writers in any discipline. Students should be enrolled concurrently in another course where academic writing is assigned.
THE ART OF SOCIAL CHANGE

CLASSICS 373: SECTION 1
Barnard Buffet Room,
Tuesdays 11 am - 12:15 pm

Explores the foundations of social change through the lens of self-exploration, discussions, and art.

Come make art!
CLASSICS 373: SECTION 2
CRC LOCAL

CLASSROOM 126, THURSDAYS 9:30 - 10:45 AM

Students will partner with Madison area organizations to complete work in service to the Madison community.
In this seminar, we will explore how public figures "control the narrative" in the order to shape their images, inspire their followers, and establish their legacies.
In this seminar, we will explore how public figures "control the narrative" in order to shape their images, inspire their followers, and establish their legacies.