The purpose of this course is to investigate multiculturalism, the intersectionality of systems of oppression (race, class, gender, dis/ability, sexuality, etc.) and social justice in individual, societal, institutional and structural spaces. The MLC seminar examines multiculturalism from individual, societal, and institutional perspectives. You'll learn about social justice, and how identities shape an individual's outlook as well as how this influences society. Credits fulfill your ethnic studies requirement.